The 4th International Symposium of the European Association of Chinese Teaching (EACT)

Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow: Chinese Language Education in Secondary and Higher Education from a Multilingual and Multicultural Perspective

21-23 April 2023, University of Southampton, UK

CALL FOR PAPERS (N° 3)

The European Association of Chinese Teaching (EACT) is pleased to announce that the 4th International Symposium will be held at the University of Southampton, UK, between the 21st and the 23rd of April 2023. This is the 3rd Call for Papers, and EACT welcomes colleagues concerned with the learning and teaching of Chinese from all over the world to join us either in-person or online and to exchange ideas and research outcomes. Details of the symposium are available on the website at <https://www.southampton.ac.uk/ci/conferences.page>. In response to request more time to submit abstract, the organising committee has decided, after careful discussion, to extend the abstract submission deadline to 15 February. Other relevant dates remain the same with no change. The registration fees for the current postgraduates has also been reduced to 50 GBP.

The Symposium is organised by the EACT in conjunction with the University of Southampton and its Confucius Institute, and with the assistance from the British Chinese Language Teaching Society (BCLTS). The theme of the Symposium is “Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow: Chinese Language Education in Secondary and Higher Education from a Multilingual and Multicultural Perspective”, reflecting and continuing the common underlying theme of all three previous symposia of the EACT, that is, “Regionality and Internationality in the Development of Teaching Chinese as a Second Language as an Academic Discipline”. This year, the Symposium will focus on the past development, the current situation and future trends of Chinese language education in national education systems, particularly in schools, and in institutions of higher education in Europe and elsewhere. The development of both theories and practices of teaching Chinese as a second language in Europe and elsewhere, as well as their impact on and insights into the development of teaching Chinese as second language as an academic discipline will be explored so as to further promote the discipline and keep it up to date.

During the symposium, the EACT will also hold its General Assembly (both online and in-person). All the members are welcome to attend. The meeting link will be sent to members through the communication channels of institutional member organisations at least one week before the General Assembly. Individual members will receive the meeting link directly from the Treasurer of the EACT.

The British Chinese Language Teaching Society will hold its 2023 spring Chinese language teaching training workshop, also at the same venue on the afternoon of the 22nd April at the end of the symposium presentations. The invited guest speakers are Professor Joël Bellassen, the President of EACT, and former Inspector general for Chinese, France, and Sun Lam, Associate Professor from the University of Minho in Portugal, member of the EACT Executive Committee, and the themes focus on 1) how to teach Chinese culture, and 2) how to teach Chinese characters respectively in teaching Chinese as a foreign language. The workshop is open to all interested and can be accessed both online and in-person. However, non EACT members will need to pay a small fee to join the workshop.
